Arabic Teaching Council

The Department of World Languages and Literatures is pleased to be collaborating with regional K-12 teachers of Arabic on the Midsouth Arabic Teaching Council. The council serves as a center for offering professional development opportunities for teachers of Arabic in Memphis and across the southeast of the United States. Created in 2020, the center will offer its first workshop in October 2020 (information below), and will continue to develop opportunities and materials to enhance the teaching of Arabic in our region.

2021-2022 Workshops

The Arabic Teaching Council at the University of Memphis is pleased to offer the following workshops. To receive the invitation to the Zoom meeting for any workshop, please contact the Department of World Languages and Literatures at wll@memphis.edu. Conditions permitting, some workshops may be held in person, and updated information will be posted here.

All workshops will take place from 10:00 a.m.-11:30 a.m. Central Time.
