Saudi Arabia's Minister of Energy Sends Warning to Market Speculators: "Watch Out" or Face Impending Pain

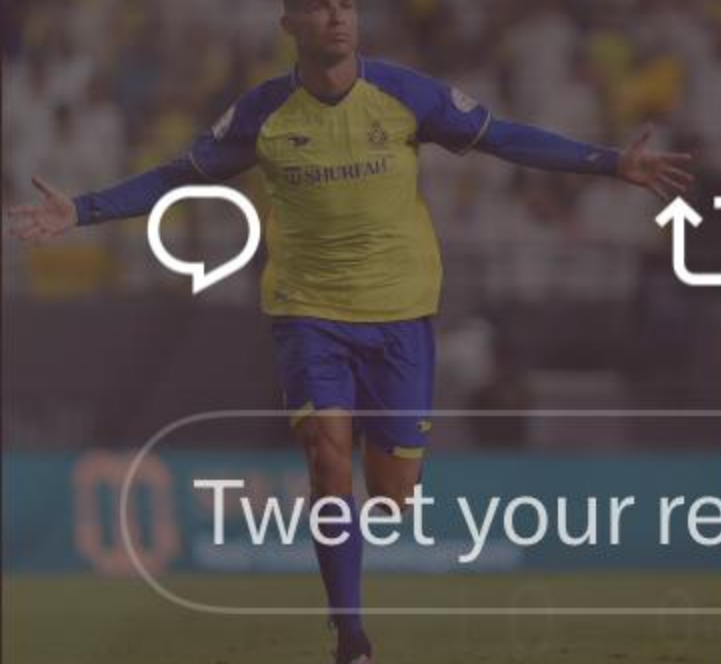

وزير الطاقة السعودي يرسل تحذيرا إلى المضاربين في السوق

يقول رونالدو إن الدوري السعودي للمحترفين يمكن أن يصبح أفضل 5 في العالم

London, VCA News, Report: ... On Tuesday, Saudi Arabia's Minister of Energy, Prince Abdulaziz bin Salman, issued a renewed caution to market speculators, urging them to remain vigilant as they may encounter difficulties in the future. During his address to an energy-focused panel at the Qatar Economic Forum in Doha on Tuesday, the minister issued a warning regarding speculation in the market. He emphasized that, like any market, speculators are a persistent presence. He reiterated his advice that they will face consequences, as they indeed did in April. While he did not disclose his specific plans, he made it clear that he was not playing a game of poker, stating, "I don't have to show my cards." However, he strongly advised speculators to exercise caution and remain vigilant. The upcoming OPEC+ meeting is scheduled to take place on June 4 in Vienna, where member nations will convene to determine their future strategy. Notably, a number of OPEC+ alliance participants have recently made voluntary declarations to reduce their daily crude oil output by a collective total of 1.6 million barrels. The prince expressed his belief that OPEC's actions demonstrate a move as a stabilizing force, rather than indulging in price gouging. He attributed the market volatility to inaccurate forecasts and policies adopted by consuming nations, citing the release of emergency stockpiles by the US as an example.

Saudi Astronauts Rayyanah Barnawi and Ali al-Qarni Join International Space Station, Extend Greetings from Space

We are experiencing the sensation of microgravity here, and we extend our gratitude to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, as well as its esteemed leaders, King Salman and the visionary Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman. Their invaluable support has made this mission possible | Barnawi

London, VCA News, Report: __ Saudi astronauts Rayyanah Barnawi and Ali Al-Qarni successfully reached the International Space Station. The seven astronauts already on board, consisting of three Russians, three Americans, and an Emirati, extended a warm welcome to them. "Hello from outer space, it feels amazing to be viewing earth from this capsule," Barnawi said in the first on-Orbit crew flight status event. "We are here feeling microgravity thanks to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and the leaders, King Salman and the visionary Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman, [and] for their support in this mission," Barnawi said, sending special regards to her family. Al-Qarni said that this moment was "historic not just for me but for every Saudi, I couldn't have done it without the support, the love [and] the trust from all of you." Barnawi, a brilliant scientist, made the first flight from Saudi Arabia, marking a historic journey. Accompanying her was Al-Qarni, a highly skilled fighter pilot. Together, they embarked on an extraordinary adventure aboard the SpaceX Dragon capsule, alongside esteemed astronaut Peggy Whitson and trailblazing business pioneer and pilot John Shoffner. Their objective is to undertake a total of 20 research projects, with a significant emphasis on contributions from Saudi scientists. Out of these, 14 projects have been conceived by Saudi researchers, encompassing a wide range of fields including human physiology, cell biology, and technological advancement. On Sunday, the private Ax-2 mission took flight as the Dragon spacecraft was launched atop a SpaceX rocket. The mission marks the second-ever privately-funded expedition to the International Space Station (ISS), building upon the success of its predecessor in April 2022.

يرحب البيت الأبيض باستعادة العلاقات بين البحرين ولبنان

London, VCA News, Reports... On a chartered multimillion-dollar flight, Saudi Arabia witnessed the historic launch of its first astronauts in decades as they embarked on a journey towards the International Space Station (ISS). A momentous event unfolded as a private rocket propelled the first Arab woman astronaut, Rayyanah Barnawi, on her mission to the ISS. Alongside her, Saudi fighter pilot Ali al-Qami joined Sunday's mission, marking a significant milestone for the nation. Rayyanah Barnawi, hailing from Saudi Arabia and working as a breast cancer researcher, aims to contribute to scientific advancements during her space exploration. At 5:37 pm local time (2:13:37 GMT), they embarked on their journey aboard a SpaceX Falcon 9 rocket, launching from the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral in the southern United States. The team comprises Peggy Whitson, a seasoned NASA astronaut embarking on her fourth journey to the ISS, and John Shofner, a Tennessee-based entrepreneur, assuming the role of pilot. On Monday morning, the quartet is scheduled to reach the space station aboard their capsule. They will embark on an exhilarating journey that involves spending slightly over a week in space. Following their extraordinary experience, they will return home with a splashdown off the coast of Florida, located in the southern United States. "Hello from outer space! It feels amazing to be viewing Earth from this capsule," Barnawi said after settling into orbit. Barnawi, proudly sponsored by the Saudi government, expressed her immense joy and deep sense of honor as she embarked on her historic journey as the first Saudi woman astronaut to venture into the vast expanse of space. Al-Qami, a career fighter pilot, expressed his enduring passion for venturing into uncharted territories and marveling at the vast expanse of the sky and the stars. "It is a great opportunity for me to pursue this kind of passion that I have, and now maybe just fly among the stars," he said. The duo hails from their country and holds the distinction of being the first to embark on a rocket journey since a Saudi prince embarked on the space shuttle Discovery back in 1985. Coincidentally, upon reaching the space station, they will be warmly welcomed by an astronaut representing the United Arab Emirates. Houston-based Axiom Space is organizing its second private flight to the space station, embarking on a remarkable mission. Last year, three businessmen teamed up with a retired NASA astronaut to launch the initial venture. Their company envisions a future where they will gradually incorporate their own modules into the station over the next few years. Eventually, these modules will be detached from the station to create an independent outpost that can be leased for various purposes. NASA has undergone a significant shift in its approach to space tourism, now embracing the concept after years of reluctance. The agency has unveiled plans to conduct two private missions annually, marking a notable departure from its previous stance. In contrast, the Russian Space Agency has intermittently engaged in space tourism for several decades. Following liftoff, SpaceX's initial-stage booster made a remarkable return to Cape Canaveral, touching down a mere eight minutes later. This event served as a delightful surprise for the spectators gathered on the launch day, among whom were approximately 60 individuals from Saudi Arabia.

London, VCA News, Report: ... The annual summit of the Arab League's 22 member states is scheduled to commence in Saudi Arabia on Friday. Jeddah has welcomed the arrival of numerous heads of state, among them President Bashar Al Assad of Syria, marking his return to the Arab fold after a suspension by the league that lasted 12 years. In a recent development, the 22-member league has taken the decision to reinstate Syria and is on the verge of extending a warm welcome to President Assad as a member once again. This significant move comes after Syria was officially invited to participate in the summit last week. It is worth noting that Saudi Arabia severed ties with Assad's government back in 2012 due to the severe crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrations that ultimately led to the outbreak of a civil war. Regrettably, this conflict has resulted in the loss of over 500,000 lives and forced millions to flee their homes. Consequently, Syria's suspension from the Arab League was primarily a consequence of these events. Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman has made consistent efforts to foster regional peace in recent months. Riyadh has made significant strides in enhancing its relations with Iran, reestablished diplomatic ties with Syria, and is actively working towards concluding the kingdom's protracted conflict in Yemen. In March, Iran, a prominent supporter of the Syrian government in the ongoing conflict, entered into an agreement with Saudi Arabia in China, marking a significant step towards the resumption of diplomatic relations between the two nations. Iran has voiced its backing for Damascus's efforts to improve relations with its neighboring countries. Assad exuded a sense of calm as he received a warm welcome on the tarmac from Prince Badr Sultan, the deputy governor of Makkah. Accompanying the prince were Arab League Secretary General Ahmed Aboul Gheit and a group of Saudi officials, creating a congenial atmosphere. Assad is scheduled to speak at the afternoon gathering in Jeddah. The Arab League is anticipated to adopt 32 draft resolutions as an integral component of the Arab action plan for 2023, with a primary emphasis on "renewal and change." The Gaza Strip and the West Bank conflict will be at the forefront of the decision-making agenda on Friday. The Sudan crisis is set to take center stage in the league's action plan, as the final communique is anticipated to emphasize the importance of ongoing collaborative Arab endeavors in order to achieve a lasting and urgent ceasefire in Khartoum. Arab efforts to reconcile with the Assad government continue to encounter resistance from Washington DC. A group of lawmakers, representing both major political parties, unveiled a bill on Thursday aiming to prevent the American government from acknowledging Mr. Assad as the President of Syria. Additionally, the proposed legislation seeks to strengthen Washington's capacity to impose sanctions. In March, Saudi Arabia's Foreign Minister, Prince Faisal bin Farhan, subtly suggested a greater level of involvement with Syria. According to Prince Faisal, a growing consensus has emerged in the Arab world indicating that the strategy of isolating Syria has proven ineffective, and there is a pressing need for dialogue, especially to tackle the dire humanitarian situation within the country. Following the devastating earthquake on February 6, which claimed the lives of thousands in Syria, Assad received significant support from Arab states, contributing to his benefit. In the year 2018, the United Arab Emirates (UAE) emerged as one of the early proponents in re-establishing comprehensive relations with Syria. Since then, the UAE has taken a prominent role in spearheading efforts towards the reintegration of Damascus.

Saudi Arabia Poised for Phenomenal Economic Surge: Predicted

to Outpace All GCC Nations in 2024 GDP Growth

London, VCA News, Report: According to Allianz Trade, it was reported on Thursday that Saudi Arabia's GDP growth in 2024 is anticipated to surpass that of all other countries within the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC). According to a press release by the Paris-headquartered trade insurer, Saudi Arabia's GDP (Gross Domestic Product) experienced a growth rate of approximately nine percent in 2022. The statement further stated that they anticipate a four percent increase in growth for the year 2024. Gross Domestic Product (GDP), which represents the overall worth of goods and services produced within a specific country, is commonly used as a gauge to assess the economic performance. According to the press release, the global increase in oil prices has played a crucial role in safeguarding Saudi Arabia's economy. The Kingdom has emerged from recent crises with minimal impact, remaining largely unaffected and experiencing no significant consequences in terms of inflation. According to Allianz, Saudi Arabia still has opportunities for further improvement in reducing its reliance on international oil prices and shipping routes, as the country's economic diversification remains limited apart from sectors closely related to energy. Saudi Arabia is presently engaged in the implementation of its ambitious economic reform plan known as Vision 2030. The primary objective of this plan is to reduce the country's reliance on oil revenue by diversifying its economy. As part of Vision 2030, Saudi Arabia has initiated various projects, such as the development of the self-sustaining city NEOM, and has also made significant investments in its video gaming industry. The Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) consists of seven countries, which encompass Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates (UAE), Qatar, Bahrain, and Oman, among others. According to the latest World Bank Gulf Economic Update, Bahrain's economic outlook hangs on oil market prospects and the results of the accelerated implementation of its structural reforms' agenda under the revised Fiscal Balance Programme. Growth is projected to moderate to 2.7 per cent in 2023 before averaging 3.2 per cent during 2024-25 as fiscal adjustments continue. Growth in the hydrocarbon sector is expected to contract by 0.5 per cent in 2023 while the non-hydrocarbon sectors will continue expanding by 3.5 per cent supported by the recovery in the tourism and service sectors and the continuation of infrastructure projects. Economic growth is expected to slow to 1.3 per cent in 2023 in response to a more cautious OPEC+ production approach and sluggish global economic activity. The Oil sector is anticipated to contract by 2.2 per cent in 2023 despite the newly established Al Zour refinery. Kuwait's non-oil sectors are anticipated to grow by 4.4 per cent in 2023 driven primarily by private consumption. Policy uncertainty caused by political deadlock is expected to undermine the implementation of new infrastructure projects. Oman's economy is forecast to continue to grow, but at a slower pace, driven primarily by accelerated implementation of structural reforms under Vision 2040. Overall growth is projected to moderate to 1.5 per cent in 2023 reflecting softening global demand. Accordingly, the hydrocarbon sector is anticipated to contract by 3.3 per cent reflecting OPEC+ recent production cuts while the non-oil economy is projected to continue its recovery trajectory by growing 3.1 per cent in 2023 supported by frontloading of infrastructure projects, increased industrial capacity from renewable energy, and the tourism sector. Real GDP is estimated to slow down to 3.3 per cent in 2023 after the strong performance registered in 2022, with the hydrocarbon sector expanding by 0.8 per cent. The North Field expansion project is expected to boost the hydrocarbon sector in the medium term once the field enters commercial operation. Meanwhile, robust growth is anticipated during this year in the non-hydrocarbon sectors, reaching 4.3 per cent, driven by private and public consumption. Economic growth in 2023 is expected to slow compared to 2022 due to a decline in global economic activity, contraction in oil production, and tightening financial conditions. Accordingly, real GDP is projected to grow by 2.8 per cent in 2023 to reflect a decline in oil activity growth of 2.5 per cent while a strong non-oil sector growth of 4.8 per cent will soften the contraction in oil activities, driven by robust domestic demand, particularly in the tourism, real estate, construction, transportation and manufacturing sectors.

London, VCA News, Report: _ The Saudi foreign ministry announced that Prince Faisal bin Farhan, the Foreign Minister of Saudi Arabia, held a meeting with Annalena Baerbock, his German counterpart, in Jeddah on Monday. They highlighted the significance of collaborative endeavors across all levels to attain shared objectives. Moreover, they deliberated on strategies to amplify mutual efforts in laying the groundwork for regional and global peace. The two parties assessed their bilateral ties and explored avenues to bolster and advance them for the mutual advantage of their respective nations. Additionally, they placed emphasis on fortifying bilateral cooperation in diverse regional and international matters, with particular attention to the realms of politics, security, and economics. The German foreign minister conveyed gratitude and appreciation for the successful evacuation of German nationals from Sudan by the Kingdom. She recognized the exceptional effectiveness demonstrated by the Saudi authorities throughout the execution of these operations. Following the outbreak of conflict on April 15 between Sudan's army chief, Abdel Fattah al-Burhan, and his former deputy, Mohamed Hamdan Daglo, who leads the Rapid Support Forces (RSF), Saudi Arabia took immediate action by evacuating numerous foreign nationals from Sudan. The evacuation process involved relocating thousands of individuals to ensure their safety and well-being amidst the escalating hostilities.

London, VCA News, Report: _ Japan's Foreign Minister, Yoshiro HAYASHI, announced during a press conference on Tuesday that Tokyo intends to offer $14.3 million (JPY1.9 billion) in assistance to Syria. He stated that due to the recent earthquake in Syria in February, which caused significant damage and an ongoing humanitarian crisis, we will provide additional assistance to Syria. The aid will focus on supporting individuals who are still enduring the repercussions of the earthquake, particularly in the areas of state initiatives, food, water, sanitation, health, and medical care. This support will be channeled through international organizations and will amount to $14.3 million. When asked about Syria rejoining the Arab League, Hayashi acknowledged that the Arab League had lifted its 2011 suspension. However, he stated that Tokyo currently had no intentions of reopening their embassy in Damascus. Nevertheless, he emphasized that Japan would maintain a close watch on the situation in Syria. Hayashi announced Japan's commitment to provide additional assistance to Sudan and its neighboring countries. In addition to previous aid, Japan pledged a generous sum of $5.5 million directly to Sudan and the surrounding nations. Furthermore, they expressed their intent to contribute approximately $3.5 million through international organizations, specifically designated for procuring food and daily essentials to support the refugees affected by the conflict that commenced in April of this year. The foreign minister further expressed growing apprehension regarding the humanitarian conditions in the eastern part of the Democratic Republic of Congo, specifically the Great Lakes region. Over the past year, there has been a significant escalation in the activities of armed groups, exacerbating the situation.

The U.S. Military Commits to Strengthen Gulf Region's Defense Amidst Iran's Aggressive Actions Against Commercial Shipping

ارتش ایالات متحده متعهد به تقویت دفاع منطقه خلیج فارس در میان اقدامات تهاجمی ایران علیه کشتیها

Washington, D.C. (VCA News) — The U.S. military is committed to strengthening the Gulf region's defense against Iran's aggressive actions against commercial shipping. U.S. officials, in response to the seizure and harassment of commercial vessels, the United States military intends to take the defensive position in the Gulf region. U.S. officials have reported that over the course of the last two years, Iran has engaged in actions that have involved harassment, attacks, or interference with the navigational rights of 15 commercial vessels flying flags from various nations. "The Department of Defense will be making a series of moves to bolster our defensive posture in the Arabian Gulf," White House spokesperson John Kirby told a news briefing. Kirby added that in the coming weeks there would be an attempt to "increase coordination and interoperability" with allies in the Strait of Hormuz. The Fifth Fleet of the U.S. Navy, stationed in Bahrain, has announced its collaborative efforts with regional allies to enhance the frequency of ship and aircraft rotations for patrols in the Strait of Hormuz. "Iran's unwarranted, irresponsible and unlawful seizure and harassment of merchant vessels must stop," the Fifth Fleet's commander, Vice Admiral Brad Cooper, said in a statement. A spokesperson from the U.S. military's Florida-based Central Command, which oversees American forces in the Middle East, said the United States was discussing options with regional partners. Following the seizure of a second oil tanker by Iran in Gulf waters earlier this month, recent developments have seen the State Department urging for its immediate release. This incident marks the latest escalation in a series of actions targeting commercial vessels in Gulf waters since 2019. On May 3, the U.S. Navy reported that the Novil, an oil tanker flying the Panama flag, had been captured by Iran's Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps Navy while transiting through the Strait of Hormuz. Prior to this incident, Iran had also seized an oil tanker with a Marshall Islands flag in the Gulf of Oman. Kirby expressed strong condemnation on behalf of the United States for any actions that pose threats and disrupt commercial shipping. Additionally, he emphasized that foreign powers would not be permitted to compromise the navigation of waterways in the Middle East.

Saudi Arabia Takes Lead in Mediating Sudan Peace Talks with Paramilitary Foes

London, VCA News, Report by mi9: __ According to the Saudi foreign ministry, Prince Faisal bin Farhan, the Foreign Minister of Saudi Arabia, was contacted by Antony Blinken, the Secretary of State of the United States, on Friday via a phone call. According to the statement, they engaged in a conversation during which they deliberated on the progress of a collaborative endeavor aimed at hosting both conflicting factions from Sudan in Jeddah. The statement further emphasized that the collaborative effort seeks to "diminish the levels of tension" in Sudan. The Sudanese army announced on Friday evening that it had dispatched representatives to Saudi Arabia to engage in discussions regarding the "ongoing extension of the truce" with its paramilitary adversaries. Regular Army Chief Abdel Fattah al-Burhan expressed his support for a seven-day ceasefire declared by South Sudan on Wednesday. However, the paramilitary Rapid Support Forces, in a recent statement, announced a three-day extension to a previous truce that had been brokered through US-Saudi mediation. According to State Department Spokesman Matt Miller, Blinken expressed gratitude to Prince Faisal for Saudi Arabia's tremendous support in facilitating the safe evacuation of American citizens and their families from Sudan. Miller added that during their meeting, the Secretary and the Foreign Minister reaffirmed the deep cooperation between their nations in diplomatic efforts aimed at resolving the conflict in Sudan. White House National Security Advisor Jake Sullivan has confirmed his upcoming visit to Saudi Arabia this weekend, during which he plans to hold a meeting with Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman. Sources familiar with Secretary Blinken's travel plans have indicated that he is anticipated to make a trip to Saudi Arabia in the coming month. Prince Faisal bin Farhan and Antony Blinken also engaged in a conversation covering the conflict in Yemen and the ongoing efforts to combat ISIS.

London, VCA News, Report: ... According to a recent report by property consultancy Knight Frank, Saudi Arabia is set to construct 315,000 new hotel rooms by the year 2030. This implies that the Kingdom will have over twice the number of hotel rooms compared to Dubai, the world's most popular tourist destination, which currently boasts 140,000 rooms. Saudi Arabia's Vision 2030 plan aims to diversify the economy away from oil, and the development of the hospitality sector plays a significant role in achieving this goal. "Incredible" is an understatement for the volume of hotel room keys that are set to be delivered in the Kingdom by 2030, as stated by Faisal Durrani, Head of Middle East Research. The total stock of hotel rooms is likely to reach close to 450,000, which is a remarkable achievement. Domestic tourism will be a major part of the Kingdom's plan, Durrani explained. A report by Knight Frank indicates that 65% of Saudi Arabian residents travel within the country one to three times per month. According to expert opinion, as 56% of the population in the Kingdom is below the age of 35, it is highly likely that the demand for different types of accommodation will continue to be a crucial factor for the industry. According to Turab Saleem, who is the head of hospitality for Saudi Arabia at Knight Frank, the expansion of the tourism industry requires the development of new infrastructure.

King Salman and Crown Prince Mohammed Bin Salman perform Eid Al-Fitr prayers, receive global well-wishes including President Biden

London, VCA News, Report by mi9: _ On Friday, Eid Al-Fitr prayers were attended by King Salman and Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman. At Jeddah's Al-Salam Palace, King Salman participated in prayers alongside dignitaries, while at the Grand Mosque in Makkah, the crown prince joined the worshippers. Previously, the king utilized Twitter to extend his Eid greetings to Arab and Muslim nations across the globe, expressing his wishes for their prosperity and stability. In his tweet, he expressed a wish that Allah accepts the fasting, prayers, and good deeds of all of us during the month of Ramadan. He also hoped that Eid would bring joy and happiness to everyone, not just in his own country, but also in the Arab and Muslim nations and throughout the world, where peace, security, and tranquility prevail. On the eve of Eid Al-Fitr, Minister of Media Salman bin Yousef Al-Dosari delivered a speech offered by King Salman on Thursday. According to him, the Kingdom was honored to serve Umrah pilgrims during Ramadan. "With a deep sense of duty and a commitment to honor, we dedicate our every effort and resource, working tirelessly day and night. This has been our mission since the founding of the state by the late King Abdulaziz bin Abdulrahman Al Saud and his successors, the kings. We take great pride and honor in carrying on this noble legacy, and we vow to continue on this path for generations to come." In his statement, he acknowledged that the millions of Umrah pilgrims who were able to perform the rituals during Ramadan owed their experience to the countless blessings of Allah the Almighty. He emphasized that this achievement would not have been possible without Allah's grace and the tireless efforts of various government sectors who worked hard to facilitate and enhance the comfort of the pilgrims during their journey. On the occasion of Eid al-Fitr, which commemorates the end of the holy month of Ramadan, Muslims worldwide received congratulations from U.S. President Joe Biden and First Lady Jill Biden, as well as from the leaders of Germany and the United Kingdom, who also conveyed similar messages of felicitation. In a written statement, Biden expressed his and Jill's best wishes to the Muslim communities across the nation and around the globe as they celebrate Eid al-Fitr and bring the holy month of Ramadan to a close. According to Biden, Eid al-Fitr is a joyous occasion celebrated by Muslims after the holy month of fasting, marked by the sighting of the crescent moon. During this festival, Muslims indulge in feasting, decorate their homes, exchange gifts with loved ones, don new clothes, and visit family and friends. Biden expressed admiration for the kindness displayed by families who generously provide food and donate to those in need through Zakat-al-Fitr. "As we celebrate our blessings this Eid, let us also recommit ourselves to the timeless work of building peace and standing up for the rights and dignity of all people," he said. "My Administration is also committed to addressing all forms of hate, including Islamophobia. This is why I established an interagency task force with senior government officials to tackle this and related challenges and encourage every American to build a more inclusive nation," he added. He said that they will celebrate Eid al-Fitr at the White House again this year to "honor inspiring Muslim Americans who are making contributions across our country." "To all celebrating, Jill and I wish you and your loved ones a happy and blessed Eid al-Fitr. Eid Mubarak!" he added. "According to a statement by German President Frank-Walter Steinmeier, the end of Ramadan festival is a significant religious celebration in our country. He mentioned that Muslim families, friends, and neighbors, who have spent a month in introspection and abstinence, will now unite to mark this occasion." Steinmeier said the Eid al-Fitr festival is also an opportunity to strengthen dialogue and understanding between different cultures and religions in Germany. "I hope that people of other faiths and non-believers will take this opportunity to engage in conversation with Muslims and know more about one of the two important festivals in Islam," he said. "In our culturally diverse society, the more we approach each other with curiosity and openness, the more we can understand and appreciate the harmony and coexistence that have made our nations successful." Biden thanked Muslims who organized campaigns in recent weeks and months to mobilize support for the victims of the devastating Feb. 6 earthquakes in Türkiye and Syria. "Muslims, Islamic communities and organizations from Germany have supported the people in the disaster area with donations and aid campaigns, and they continue to do so. My heartfelt thanks goes to all the helpers today," he said. With an 84 million strong population, Germany hosts the second-largest Muslim community in Western Europe, following France. Official figures suggest that nearly 5 million Muslims reside in Germany. Rishi Sunak, the Prime Minister of Britain, conveyed his heartfelt greetings to Muslims in the U.K. on the occasion of Eid. In a statement, he expressed that Eid presents a fitting occasion to recognize the common principles that unite us, specifically our empathy and commitment to giving back through charitable endeavors and philanthropic actions. "This was evident earlier this year, through the community's outstanding response to support the victims of the earthquakes in Türkiye and Syria." "Paying tribute to the 'incredible' contribution the Muslim community makes to the country," he said. "Whether it be in the form of financial support, or the tireless work of our NHS (National Health Service) staff, or the countless hours of help in making the country the success it is." "Today, to all those who are observing Eid Mubarak, I extend my warm greetings," he remarked, expressing his anticipation of hosting delegates from the British Muslim community at Downing Street to commemorate the occasion.
